Key Takeaways

Cable tray prices vary by type, material, and finish, with black and white trays generally costing between $20 and $80 per 2.4-meter section depending on specifications. Price Overview

Cable trays are available in various types including ladder, wire mesh, basket, and single rail, and are made from materials such as steel, stainless steel, aluminum, and PVC. The finish or color, such as black or white, can slightly affect the price due to coating or powder coating processes.

- Ladder-type trays: Typically range from $25 to $60 per 2.4-meter section for standard steel or galvanized finishes. Black or white powder-coated versions may cost 10-20% more.
- Wire mesh or basket trays: Prices generally range from $30 to $80 per 2.4-meter section, depending on mesh density and material.
- PVC trays: Usually $20 to $50 per section, offering corrosion resistance and lighter weight, with color options including black and white.

Factors Affecting Price

- Material: Stainless steel and aluminum trays are more expensive than standard galvanized steel or PVC.

- Finish/Color: Powder-coated black or white trays add to manufacturing costs.
- Size and Load Capacity: Wider trays or those designed for heavy-duty cables cost more.
- Fittings and Accessories: Elbows, tees, and supports are priced per piece and can add to the total cost .

Purchasing Tips

- Check suppliers like RS Components, McMaster-Carr, and Amazon for color-specific options and bulk pricing .
- Consider pre-coated black or white trays for aesthetic or environmental requirements.
- Compare per-meter pricing and include fittings to estimate total project cost accurately. By considering these factors, you can select black or white cable trays that meet both your budget and installation requirements.
